Today's Word

Today's word is—Pusillanimitas. Pronounced—pu-si-la-nim-i-tas. It means—weakness of spirit, cowardice, destitution of manly strength and firmness. It comes from a combination of the Latin words "pusillus," meaning "very little," and "animus," "the mind." It's used like this—"Editorial writers generally agree that the present serious situation at Constantinople is due mainly to the pusillanimitas of the European governments' policy there."

BRAIN TESTERS.
Cut off my tail and set it at my head and what was an island will become a little bear. What was the island?

Yesterday's answer: Read backward and you will get this rhyme: Hide a cock horse to Banbury Cross. To see a fine lady ride on a grey horse; Kings on her fingers and bells on her toes, She shall have music wherever she goes!

Fairmont Leads.
On Tuesday night the Clarksburg mining school received six new scholars, which ran up its total enrollment to forty-seven. The Fairmont class is still leading with forty-eight members enrolled, with Friday's night's prospects yet to count upon to swell the number.
At Mt. Clare on Monday night there were five new members enrolled making that enrollment now twenty-six.
At Carolina last evening there were twenty present. This class has twenty-four enrolled.

COMMUNITY CHEST TO BE DISCUSSED EARLY NEXT WEEK

(See also page 5666A)

fits at a less cost, it could be worked successfully in this section. With an organization on a broad scale such as outlined in a community chest, many problems can be taken care of with ease, and all drivers for funds combined into one campaign.

The duplication of benefits is one of the troubles encountered when there are several organizations working at once. It was discovered in one city that a certain family had an income of $40 a week, counting contributions from several organizations and the salaries of the members of family able to work, and yet at Christmas time this family was marked up for three special baskets. Any such instance as that is eliminated by the community plan, it is pointed out.

Those who favor the community chest say that it is the best plan from all angles that has ever been devised, but others still hold to the other system of securing and distributing charity funds. These arguments will be carefully considered at the meeting next Wednesday, after which the committee may make some definite report.

No Bullets Found.
Mr. McVey had four wounds, a slight flesh wound on the nose, a lacerated wound on the right thumb, a bullet wound in the right arm, the bullet fracturing a bone in the arm, and a wound in the breast similar to a gun shot wound. In speaking of the wound in the breast Doctor Carr said that no bullet was found in the body of McVey notwithstanding the fact that every method known to the medical profession was used to locate the bullet. On cross questioning, he said it was possible that the wound had been made by some other instrument. In answering a question directed by the prosecuting attorney, Doctor Carr said it was possible for the wound to have been made by a bullet and that the bullet after making the wound dropped to the floor, its force having been spent.

CONDITIONS ON B. & O. IMPROVING

118 cars yesterday. The B. & O. secured twenty-seven cars, while foreign roads secured forty-one cars.

Fourteen cars of railroad fuel were loaded of the Charleston Division yesterday, of which the B. & O. secured five cars. Only three cars of railroad fuel were loaded of the Cumberland Division yesterday. Twenty cars of foreign railroad fuel were loaded of the Morgantown & Wheeling. Thirty-six cars of Western Maryland fuel was loaded of the Belting and Weaver branch of the Western Maryland Railway.

In the Coke Belt.
Mines on the Monongahela Railway in Pennsylvania on Wednesday loaded 222 cars of coal against 272 cars Monday and 231 on Tuesday. Today the mines had 231 cars placed, and forty-seven mines were reported at work again today.

Opens Office.
Lieut. G. E. Junkin, who represents the fuel distributor in district No. 8 Northern West Virginia and Maryland, today opened rooms at 203 Bethlehem Building.

Returns to Pittsburgh.
W. G. Ireland, sales manager of the Commonwealth Fuel Co., has returned to Pittsburgh.

With the Miners.

B. A. Scott, international board member, United Mine Workers of America, with headquarters in Charleston, is in Fairmont today. With W. F. Ray, Charleston, district board member, he will go to Morgantown this afternoon to settle some grievances.

C. H. Batley, international representative, United Mine Workers of America, who was formerly in this field, is now in the Georges Creek field with headquarters at Cumberland, Md. He is assisting Francis Drum, president of district 16, in handling matters pertaining to the strike.

Among the companies that have been incorporated at Charleston are the following: Rosehill Coal Co., Rosemont, $100,000; Houck, Reidler Bros. Coal Mining Co., Austen, $400,000; Banner Coal Co., Clarksburg, $50,000; Gordon Fuel Co., Clarksburg, $50,000; High Grade Coal Co., Kingwood, $25,000; Bruce Coal Co., Albright, $10,000; Banton-Weaver Fuel Co., Buckhannon, $15,000.

The Stanley Coal Co., Morgantown, has been capitalized at $100,000 with these incorporators: Charles W. Ream, Stanley Ashby of Crellin, Md., Samuel A. Kendall, Jr., John W. Kendall of Meyersdale, Pa., J. L. Kendall, Sr., Pittsburgh, Pa.
The Dominion Fuel Corporation of Morgantown has been organized for the purpose of engaging in the coal business in Monongalia County, this concern having an authorized capital stock of $50,000. It was organized by Frank Troft, Margaret Troft, Frank L. Bowman, Pearl S. Bowman and Anna Troft of Morgantown.

ANNABELLE CASE BEING HEARD IN CRIMINAL COURT

went in an answer Mrs. McVey. Mrs. McVey on Stand.
Mrs. McVey was the next witness introduced by the state. She retold the story of the shooting at their home but was unable to positively identify the prisoner before the bar as one of the two men who did the shooting. Mrs. McVey said that Robey was about the same build as one of the two men but that she could not be sure he was one of the men. Mrs. McVey said that she could identify the other man if he was ever apprehended as she had had a good look at his face as he was the first to enter the room.

The state's last witness was Dr. H. H. Carr, who was called to treat the McVey's after they had been brought to a local hospital. Doctor Carr told of the wounds on the bodies of the two victims.

Mrs. McVey was struck by three bullets, according to the doctor's testimony. The first entered at the right of the breast bone, and coming out under the right arm entered and lodged in the right arm. The second wound was in the right forearm, the bullet passing through the arm but not injuring the bone. The last wound was in the left hip, the bullet passing through the fleshy part of the hip, but not injuring any of the bones.

Mr. McVey had four wounds, a slight flesh wound on the nose, a lacerated wound on the right thumb, a bullet wound in the right arm, the bullet fracturing a bone in the arm, and a wound in the breast similar to a gun shot wound. In speaking of the wound in the breast Doctor Carr said that no bullet was found in the body of McVey notwithstanding the fact that every method known to the medical profession was used to locate the bullet. On cross questioning, he said it was possible that the wound had been made by some other instrument. In answering a question directed by the prosecuting attorney, Doctor Carr said it was possible for the wound to have been made by a bullet and that the bullet after making the wound dropped to the floor, its force having been spent.

At the conclusion of Doctor Carr's testimony the state rested its case. At this point Attorney Shaw, who had been appointed by the court to defend the accused, asked that the jury be removed and made a motion that the court instruct the jury to return a verdict for the defendant as the state had not proven its case. Judge Showalter ruled that as one of the state's witnesses had been positive of his identification of the prisoner that the case would proceed. The jury was released.

Dr. L. J. Walker of Clarksburg was the first witness introduced by the defense. Doctor Walker was on the stand at the West Virginian's press hour. The defense has quite a large number of witnesses, and if the case is finished today it will probably be late in the afternoon, or night session may be necessary.

N. Y. C. OFFICIALS LEAVE FAIRMONT

A special train carrying P. & L. E. and New York Central officials went out of Fairmont this afternoon en route to Pittsburgh. The party was taken on an automobile trip this morning and they visited points along the Indian Creek & Northern Railway, which was recently acquired by the B. & O. It is also reported that they looked over some of their coal lands between here and Mannington. S. B. Brady, coal operator, because of his connection with the Little Kanawha Syndicate and his family accompanied it back to New York.

While here, J. B. Yohe, Pittsburgh, vice president and general manager, P. & L. E. Railroad Co., said that the company had recently purchased 15,000 new cars.

Those in the party were as follows:
A. H. Harris of New York, vice president of the New York Central Railroad Co.; George A. Harwood of New York, assistant to President Alfred H. Smith of New York, New York Central Railroad Co.; Col. J. M. Schoonmaker of Pittsburgh, chairman of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Co.; J. B. Yohe of Pittsburgh, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Co.; Col. H. C. Nutt, of Pittsburgh, president of the Monongahela Railway Co.; W. H. Bruner of Pittsburgh, secretary to Col. J. M. Schoonmaker.

WELCOMES UPWARD TREND, THOUGH IT'S ONLY A NOTCH, AFTER YEARS AT BOTTOM

CONNIE MACK

By BILLY EVANS

"Seventh place will make as big a hit with me in 1932 as the winning of pennants did not so many years ago," Connie Mack said to me recently, when I came to Philadelphia to umpire a series between Boston and the Athletics—a series on which seventh place hinged.

I had just come over from New York, from officiating at the series between the Yankees and St. Louis—a hectic struggle for first place. St. Louis invaded New York with a half game lead. By winning the first game it increased this to a game and a half. Then the Yankees won the next three, leaving New York in front by a game and a half.

The final game went 11 innings. Smiling But Serious.
When I came out to start the first game between Boston and the Athletics, Mack remarked to me: "Well, you're in for another crucial series."

A bit of a smile played over his countenance as he said it.

"From the sublime to the ridiculous," remarked one of the players on the bench.

This didn't make a hit with Connie, and in his quiet way he killed that feeling off, if it existed among any of the players.

"Finishing in seventh place this year," he said, "will be as pleasing to me as winning pennants in the old days."

He was perfectly serious.

Luck Against Him

For seven years he has held the undisputed right to last place in the American League. Several times he has felt that he was certain to kiss it goodby, but the fates were always against him. He wants to finish in seventh place because he feels that it will be a step in the right direction and that getting out of last place will have a good psychological effect on his players.

It may sound strange, but Connie Mack is handling every game down the home stretch of the present season as carefully as if his club were in the thick of the pennant fight. He is shooting at seventh place. Finishing there will carry with it much honor.

Mack feels that finally he is on the way to better things. Finishing seventh will confirm him in this belief.

No Longer a Joke

"I have a great catcher, my pitching staff is constantly improving, Dykes and Galloway are fixtures at third and short," he explains. "The veteran Young and the youngster Sheer will take care of second. Hauser at first can hit and is sure greatly to improve his fielding now that he is being played regularly. The outfield satisfies me. The Athletics must be rated as a joke aggregation no longer. My team has passed out of that class."

"I want to finish seventh this year. Next season I will be aiming a notch or two higher."

Discoverer of Implantation Of Glands in Humans Claims Plan Not Panacea But Aid

Progress Being Made in Gland Transplanting Told by Doctor Stanley.

Healty and the unwarranted claims of medical buccaneers, must be overcome on this poorly charted sea of research.

"From study of the 1000 treatments here, it is believed that the substance injected does have a decided effect upon those who are underweight, lack energy, sleep poorly, have scant appetite, and are generally 'run down.'"

"Usually with the first week of treatment they gain weight, their work and evince a general buoyancy."

"Of 326 patients so diagnosed, 305 have shown marked benefit." "None of those so afflicted has become worse, but a few did not improve."

"In the 1000 injections, animal substance was used on 656 human beings, mostly convicts, but including 96 free persons, among them 13 physicians and seven females."

"The substance, taken from dead goats, rams and boars and deer was shredded and injected into the abdominal wall by means of a syringe."

"So far as has been observed, there is little difference in effect provement in energy, appetite and mental and physical activity.

"The results in tuberculosis were not particularly encouraging. Thirty-three of the fifty-six suffering from neurasthenia showed decided improvement. They gained in weight, felt fine and apparently forgot many of their fancied ailments."

"All the physicians who took the treatment, with one exception reported good results."

"Thirty-two of forty-one who had complained of poor vision reported eyesight greatly strengthened."

"No ill effects from glandular implantations have been found except an occasional bluish color of the material. In these latter cases, the site of the injection becomes slightly painful."

"There are no bad constitutional effects, and the patient goes about his work as usual."

"The glands may be preserved and used effectively for days after being taken from a dead animal."

PERSONALITIES IN EUROPE RECALLED BY MRS. MORROW

Mrs. Morrow told of various experiences with people on board the steamer, Russians, Americans and others, and the impressions she received of the natives of the different countries visited by her.

Morrow especially emphasized the worth of the German people, who considered in the light of personality. She told of the fact that no word of resentment against the American soldiers was spoken of by the Germans. One German soldier told of his capture by the American forces when he was but 17 years old and he expressed his appreciation of the fact as this was the first time he had had enough to eat since his entrance into the army. Mrs. Morrow does not believe that the German people are prosperous, according to a statement made in her address.

Mrs. Morrow's final remark was told in connection with the various experiences in connection with people of all nations. She said she often marveled that the various nations averaged up so nearly alike in regard to the humanity of people and in concluding she said, "Oh, the kindness that there is in the hearts of people."

Following Mrs. Morrow's address Joseph Rosier, president of the Normal school, conducted the announcements. Lockers for the students are ready for use at this time, it was announced. No rent will be collected on the lockers but a fee of 25 cents will be charged each student as a means of insuring a fund to be used if the keys are lost. The money will be returned at the end of the year if the keys are returned.

Mr. Rosier spoke to the students for several minutes in regard to the necessity of attending chapel and the various social functions as a means of becoming better organized. He urged the furthering of school spirit and expressed the wish that all the new students would soon become adapted to the different environment.

MOTION PICTURE TO BE SHOWN FRIDAY

A feature of fire prevention week will be fittingly celebrated tomorrow when the community civics classes of the Fairmont High School under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Koletka hold a program dealing with this subject. The program will be held in the auditorium of the school and will begin at 2:45 o'clock. A motion picture, furnished by William D. Richardson of the Consolidation Coal Co., will be shown. The picture demonstrates the amount of destruction caused by fire. Talks concerning fire prevention will be made by the different students.

The pictures to be shown are "The Menace," a two reel feature, and "The Danger That Never Sleeps," in one reel. Nine slides of fire admonitions will also be shown. The same pictures will be shown in forty-eight mining towns in which mines of the Consolidation Coal Co. are located.
